LITTLE BILLEE. Various false readings, lax renderings, and unwarranted additions have by degrees crept into the text of the famous lyric of "Little Billee," and the publishers deserve our thanks for having learnedly and gravely sifted the evidence in favour of each version. Strange to say, there are those on whom the pocullar qualities of this poem produce no impression; and who perceive its elevated moral tendency as little as its striking literary excellence. To these persons, but to no others, we owe an apology for offering to thom the only genuind text of "Little Billee," never before published.—Saturday Review. There were three sailors of Bristol City Who took a boat and went to sea; But first with boof and captain's biscuits And pickled pork they boarded sho. There was gorging Jack and guzzling Jimmy, And the youngest he was little Billee. Now when they had got as far as the equator, They'd nothing left but one split pea. Says gorging Jack to guzzling Jimmy, " I am extremely hungaree." To gorging Inck says guzzling Jimmy, We've nothing left, we must est wee' Says gorging Jack to guzzling Jimmy, " With one another we should agree !.. There's little Bill, ho's young and tender, We are old and tough, so let's eat he. " Oh! Billy, we're going to kill and eat you,

He used his pocket hankerchie. First let me say my catechism, Which my poor mammy taught to me. " Make haste, make huste," says gazzling Jimmy, While Jack pulled out his snickersoc. So Billy went up to the maintop-gallant-mast, And down he went on his bended knee, ---He searce had come to the twelfth commandment

So undo the button of your chimce,"

When Bill received this intimation

When up he jumps; "There's land I see; " Jornselem and Madagascar, And North and South Amerikee; There's the British flag a riding at anchor, With Admiral Napier, K.C.B." THE BOLAN PASS AND THE PLAIN OF QUETTAH-

By W. M. THACKERAY.

It was in the early spring of 1841, some eight or more months before our troubles had commenced at Cabul, or before there was any outbreak in that city, that the regiment in which I was then a subaltern received orders to march from Dadur, at the foot of the Bolan Pass, to Quettah. This famous pass is about 70 miles long, and is, or used to be, divided by the troops who have to march through it into seven marches. The only substitute for a road through the pass varies street, and often as narrow as Chancery-lane. It is flanked on each side by almost perpendicular rocks, some two hundred feet high:

all the stone boulders and huge pieces of last of the seven marches, infantry cannot move more than four abreast, whilst cavalry, and the never-ending string of baggage camels, have to proceed in single file. pass is from first to last a more or less steep ascent, so that by the time you emerge from the top, and enter the plain of Quettah, you are-upwards-of-six thousand feet above the level of the sea. What between the natural beauty of this scenery, and the great contrast. it is to the bleak and desolate Bolan Pass. the plain of Quettah strikes those who see it for the first time as one of the most levely apote on earth. It is covered with verdue of the brightest and most varied kind. The ground is not flat, but mostly undulating Irrigation, both in the form of natural rivnings are exceedingly enjoyable. Here, in one of the best situated parts of the plainwe pitched our camp; and as we were told we should in all probability remain at Quettah for some months, we preceed to make ourselves as comfortable as was possible. All the Year Round.
